§2. Mobile application privacy information

1. The 24th International Conference on Organic Synthesis mobile application is used to provide participants with access to information related to the Conference, including the agenda, speakers, organizational announcements and push notifications.

2. The mobile application does not require the user to create an account and does not collect personal data such as name, surname, e-mail address, phone number or billing data.

3. For the purpose of sending push notifications, the application may collect and store a technical device push notification token. This token is used only to deliver notifications related to the Conference, such as organizational messages, agenda updates or important announcements.

4. The processing of the device push notification token is based on the user's consent to receive push notifications and is carried out only for the purpose of sending Conference-related notifications.

5. The device push notification token is stored in the application's technical infrastructure and/or in services used to deliver push notifications. The application uses Firebase and Expo services to process the device push notification token for the purpose of delivering push notifications.

6. The device push notification token will be stored for up to 6 months after the end of the Conference and will then be deleted.

7. The push notification token is not used for advertising purposes, is not sold to third parties and is not used to identify the participant outside the purpose of sending Conference-related notifications.

8. The user may disable push notifications at any time in the settings of their mobile device. Disabling notifications does not affect access to the basic content of the application.

9. The mobile application does not use profiling, does not track users for advertising purposes and does not share data with advertising networks.

10. Personal data provided during Conference registration is processed separately in accordance with the provisions of §1 above. The mobile application is only an additional technical tool supporting participation in the Conference.
